RAIL UNIONS ORDER

STRIKE ON OCTOBER 30

2,000,000 To Be Out By November 2; 17 Roads Affected; Harding Tries to Avert Walk-Out

Chicago, Oct. 13.—More than 500,000 American railroad men were ordered today to initiate a strike October 30, while other unions, whose membership brings the total to about 2,000,000, announced unofficially that they were preparing tonight to follow suit and make the walkout general on the same date.

Under this programme the tie-up would be complete, according to union predictions, by November 2. The hour was fixed for 6 o'clock the morning of October 30, except for one Texas line, whose trainmen were authorized to go out October 22.

The railroads listed in the first group on which the strike is to become effective touch forty-two of the forty-eight states and have a trackage of 78,000 miles out of the total United States trackage of approximately 200,000.

The New England States comprise the group that virtually is untouched in the first walkout.

Oldest Unions Back Strike

The strike orders were issued to the Big Five Brotherhoods, oldest and most powerful of the railway unions, and they specifically included mail trains in the walkout.

Their provisions instructed strikers to keep away from railroad property and warned them that "violence of any nature will not be tolerated by the organizations."

The strike was announced following an overwhelming vote, said to be by a margin of 90 per cent, favoring a strike because of a 12 per cent wage reduction authorized by the United States Railroad Labor Board as of July 1 and after it had been declared by the Association of Railway Executives in session here yesterday that a further reduction would be sought by the railroads. It was said that the strike decision was made before the announcement of this further intended cut. Printed instructions as to conduct of the strike, issued in Chicago, were dated Friday, October 14.

Seriousness Is Emphasized

"I fear it will be one of the most serious strikes in American transportation history," said W. G. Lee, president of the Railroad Trainmen, who, during recent weeks, has sent of the critical nature of the steps circulars to his men warning them they contemplated.

The country was divided into four groups, in which the men were authorized to walk out progressively, one group every twenty-four hours. The names of the groups were not made public, but unofficially the identity of roads in the first group to go was learned, subject to changes, which union officials said would be few.

This first group included some of the country's greatest rail systems, from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf. These were:

Chicago & Northwestern; Texas & Pacific; Kansas City Southern; Pennsylvania; Missouri Pacific; International & Great Northern; Southern Pacific; Atlantic & Pacific lines; Southern Railway; Louisville & Nashville; St. Louis Southwestern (whether Texas lines included not stated); Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul (lines east and west); Northern Pacific; Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific; Seaboard Air Line; Erie; Chicago Great Western, and Virginia.

Unions Which Issued Call

The unions issuing the strike call today were:

Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers; Order of Railway Conductors; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; Switchmen's Union of North America.

Washington, Oct. 15.—The public group of the Railroad Labor board and the full membership of the Interstate Commerce commission, by personal direction of President Harding, joined forces today in an effort to avert the threatened serious railroad labor complications.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—The railroads will be able to continue operation despite the nation wide strike called by sixteen railroad labor organizations, in the opinion of Samuel M. Felton, president of the Chicago Great Western, one of the principal roads included in the first group on which the rail employees will walk out October 30.

"NONPARTISAN" CHAFF

The full Republican ticket, under its party emblem, is printed this morning as an advertisement by the Republican committee. Every man is there in his proper place. They aspired for a Republican nomination and got it. But some of them are appealing for Democratic votes on the "nonpartisan" idea. How can a man claim nonpartisan votes when he runs for office as a partisan?

In the case of circuit judges the legislature has provided, in order to take these offices out of politics, that a candidate for circuit judge may submit his claims for nomination in the primary to both parties or all parties and his name upon proper petition shall be so placed upon the primary ballot. In several districts of Kentucky last August this was done. Some such candidates were nominated by both the Democratic and the Republican parties. Some won the nomination of one party and lost with the other. They could, therefore, go on in their candidacy on the ticket with which they succeeded.

But in our own district no candidate for circuit judge asked the nomination of both parties. Judge Slack, being for many years an ardent and aggressive Republican, asked only the Republican nomination. He chose to cast his lot solely with the "Log Cabin" party. He is said to have been active also in framing up the Republican county ticket. It was to his interest to do this. He needed all the help he could get from his fellow Republicans in getting out the full Republican vote. Nobody could blame him for that.

But Judge Slack and others on the "Log Cabin" ticket know they cannot be elected by Republican votes only. They are appealing for non-partisan votes. They are praying for the votes of disgruntled Democrats, men who were disappointed in the Democratic primary. There are fewer and fewer of these, however, every day.

Democrats who have good memories can hardly vote for Slack, though he is a popular and genial man who has many personal friends. Until he was middle-aged he was a Democrat. For reasons best known to himself, some years ago he left the Democratic party and became a zealous Republican. Like the man who changes from one church to another he became an intense, partisan Republican. He has never been able to see anything good in the Democratic party since. He has done everything in his power to break up the Democratic party. He was elected circuit judge six years ago in this Democratic district because of an unfortunate breach at that time in the Democratic party. But that breach has long ago been healed and no considerable number of Democrats can ever be persuaded to vote to re-elect Slack because he as a Republican partisan does not deserve Democratic votes.—O'boro Messenger Oct. 16, 1921.

VENERABLE CITIZEN SUCCUMBS

Mr. Hazel Brown, one of Ohio County's most venerable and respected citizens died at the home of his son, Mr. Wm. I. Brown, near Narrows, last Friday evening, after a very brief attack of pneumonia. He was 85 years of age, and had been for many years a consistent member of the Baptist church. His wife preceded him to the grave about two and a half years ago. He is survived by two daughters and five sons.

The funeral service was conducted by Bro. Guyman Westerfield, after which the body was laid to rest in Hale burying grounds.

BATTLE HERO BURIED WITH MILITARY HONORS

An immense crowd witnessed the military burial of the body of Lee Keith, a martyr of the World War, at Stewart burying ground near Horse Branch, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The military services were performed by American Legionnaires from Wil-Bro-Du Post, Rockport, Ky., and Ohio County Post, Hartford, Ky., about 20 ex-service men taking part. The funeral sermon was delivered by Rev. W. S. Buckner, pastor of Beaver Dam Methodist church. The citizens of the surrounding community rendered some beautiful vocal selections.

Pvt. Keith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Keith and besides his parents is survived by five sisters and six brothers. He entered the U. S. Army in May, 1918 and was soon sent to France, where, after many weeks heroic service with Co. L. 138th Inf., 32nd Div., he was killed Nov. 7, just four days before the Armistice was signed. He was 23 years of age. His body was buried on the battlefield and later removed to the military cemetery at Romagne, France, from whence it was recently removed to be returned to this country.

Those who knew young Keith say he was a splendid type of young manhood, and that his chances for a prosperous career were bright. However, the sacrifice of his life on the altar of his country's liberty has enshrined his memory in the hearts of his fellow Kentuckians.

EMMANUEL J. TILFORD

Emmanuel J. Telford, of Beaver Dam, died in St. Anthony's Hospital, Louisville, Ky., Oct. 14th, of blood poisoning, at the age of forty-six years, eight months and three days. WILSON AND GARY RECEIVED WITH ENTHUSIASM

Finish First Lap of Speaking Tour in County; Many Pledges of Support

Hon. George S. Wilson and Hon. Glover H. Gary completed the first lap of their speaking campaign in Ohio County last Saturday night when they addressed a large and enthusiastic audience at Cromwell. Beginning Wednesday, they spoke at Mantanzas, Centertown, Equality, Ceralvo, Rockport, Wysox, McHenry, Batzetown and Cromwell, being greeted by good-sized audiences at all points. They were accompanied by the Democratic candidates for county offices. The delegation reports that the voters in the various districts showed unusual interest in the issues of the campaign and that there was evident everywhere a desire and determination to try to better conditions in the county through the medium of the ballot on Nov. 8. A feature of the meetings was the presence and interest of the ladies.

Wilson At McHenry
In his speech at McHenry Mr. Wilson said:

"It is probably true, as Judge Slack says, that there were more Democrats than Republicans selected as jury commissioners by Judge Birkhead and by his other predecessors. A jury commissioner serves about three days a year and gets two dollars a day, I believe, for his service. But I would like to ask Judge Slack if he means to charge that the juries selected in Judge Birkhead's courts, or in Judge Owen's courts or in Judge Little's courts were partisan or that either of these judges were partisan in their rulings. What case did either of them or any jury in their courts ever decide on partisan grounds?"

"I resent the charges or insinuations that the business in the courts of either Judge Birkhead, Judge Owen or Judge Little was conducted or decided at any time on partisan grounds or for any party reasons. It so, I call upon my opponent to name the case or ruling of the court that was so decided or made. I am surprised that Judge Slack is undertaking to make the voters believe that politics has been played in the courts of any of the judges who preceded him on the bench."

Woman Worries Judge
"The judge also bitterly complains because the Democrats gave to the women the honor of opening the campaign." Does he mean to deny the women a voice in public affairs. Does he mean to say they can vote, but must not speak. He is very much perturbed over Mrs. Fulton's speech at Owensboro and refers to it in all of his speeches and even when he prints and reprints a complimentary editorial printed about him at the beginning of his term, he takes occasion to put his respects to this splendid lady who honored us with a speech at the beginning of the campaign."

At Rockport a large percentage of the audience was composed of miners and Mr. Wilson, who was born and reared in a mining section, had a heart-to-heart talk with them in regard to common interests and purposes.

The speaking tour will be continued in the northern part of the county this week.

PROMINENT CITIZEN OF HORSE BRANCH DEAD

Mr. Walker Myrtle, a well-known druggist and merchant of Horse Branch, died last Friday morning at 6:30 o'clock after an illness covering a period of many weeks. For many years he has been one of the leading citizens of his county and community. His wife survives him. His body was taken to Leitchfield, Ky., where, after appropriate funeral services, burial occurred.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE

Only a few more days now in which to comply with the law requiring you to file your assessment list with the county tax commissioner. Please attend to this matter at once.

Yours respectfully,
D. E. WARD, Tax Comm'r. Ohio Co.

SENATOR PHILANDER C.

KNOX, STRICKEN, DIES

Unexpected Death Comes Two Days After Return to Capitol From Europe.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Philander Chase Knox, Senator from Pennsylvania, and Secretary of State under President William Howard Taft, died unexpectedly at 6:30 o'clock this evening at his home here. He was stricken by paralysis after descending the stairway on his way to the dining-room for dinner and died before a physician could reach him without regaining consciousness.

Mrs. Knox and the Senator's secretary, W. F. Martin, were near the Senator and hurried to his aid. Dr. Samuel Adams was summoned immediately, but he found Mr. Knox beyond medical aid.

Mr. Knox returned to Washington only Monday night from a trip to Europe with Mrs. Knox and he attended the sessions of the Senate yesterday and today.

News Shocks Washington

Leaving the Senate Chamber about 5 o'clock this afternoon, the Senator took an automobile ride through Potomac Park and stopped on his way home to purchase tickets for a theater performance tonight. Reaching home, he went to his library, where he remained until summoned to dinner.

The news came as a shock to all official Washington, for the Senator through his service first as Attorney General under Presidents William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt, and later as Secretary of State under Mr. Taft, had a wide circle of friends in all walks of public life, congressional, diplomatic and legal.

Senate to Adjourn Today

Arrangements for the funeral will be made tomorrow after the arrival in Washington of Mr. Knox's children.

The Senate will meet tomorrow and adjourn out of respect to the late Senator, and with the House will name a committee to attend the funeral. Mr. Knox's home was in Pittsburgh and he also had a summer home at Valley Forge. The place of burial has not been announced.

While at the Senate today Mr. Knox was apparently in the best of health, although he had been somewhat overtaxed lately in connection with Senate work with reference to restoring the technical state of peace with Germany, Austria and Hungary.

Was Peace Measure Author

He was the author of the peace resolution bearing his name and one of the Senate conferees in adjusting it with the Porter resolution. The resolution was passed at this session of Congress, and it was under it that Mr. Harding negotiated the pending treaties of peace with Germany, Austria and Hungary.

When Congress took a recess late in August, Mr. Knox left for Europe with Mrs. Knox for a vacation and was absent slightly more than three weeks. He sought to reach Washington in time to vote on the Panama Canal tolls repeal, but arrived some days after the vote had been taken.

He told his associates that, while he had been benefited by his vacation, he felt somewhat tired.

Mr. Knox was 66 years old, and was serving in the Senate for a second time, having first been appointed in 1904 to succeed the late Senator Matthew Stanley Quay. He was elected to succeed himself in 1905, but resigned four years later to become Secretary of State.

HOUSE VOTES TO BAR PAPER PUBLISHING ODDS ON HORSE RACES FROM MAIL

Washington, Oct. 12.—Transmission through the mails of newspapers publishing betting odds on horse races, prize fights and "other contests of speed, strength or skill" would be prohibited under a bill passed today, without a roll call, by the House.

The Senate concurrence is needed before the measure can become a law.

CAPITOL CULLINGS

Washington, Oct. 15.—The fiscal policy of this administration is the rock upon which the Republican party is splitting in Congress and upon which it will split throughout the nation if the administration plans are carried out.

The word "policy" is used figuratively, for the proposed procedure in matters of taxation particularly, involves no policy that includes either the principles of finance or economics. Scheme is the better word, for it amounts solely to a scheme to relieve profiteering corporations of a just tax and shift that burden unjustly upon the already overburdened small taxpayer, including the smaller corporations.

This split among Republicans in the Senate is so much in view that even the President's Washington newspaper monopoly is compelled to take note of it. After citing a proposed coalition between the Progressive Republicans and Democrats on the tax bill and the alleged plan of the Democrats to vote for a sales tax amendment and then vote against the bill in company with Republicans opposed to the sales tax, the Washington Post says:

"Either horn of the dilemma threatens disaster to the Republican party. In whose ranks the split of discord is daily growing wider. The present situation at the Capitol is disclosing to public view a fact which cannot much longer be concealed, that the Republican party today is not functioning smoothly and efficiently because it is no longer thinking as a unit. Its members are as far apart as the poles on some of the greatest questions underlying what is attempted to be made into definite policy."

"The bonds which held its component parts together during the campaign, when Republicans of all shades of opinion were actuated by a common opposition to what became known as 'Wilsonism,' are to-day falling asunder. The serious feature of the situation from the party's point of view is not that the party is not working harmoniously, but that the fundamental differences between Republicans are to-day as great, if not actually greater, than they were in 1912."

And then, as if to show the helpful and constructive efforts of the Democrats in behalf of honest taxation, the Post adds:

"The Democrats have seized this opportunity to propose to the Progressive Republicans certain definite amendments which might be written into the pending tax bill to make it more acceptable to both."

All of this, mind you, comes from a newspaper, accepted as the administration organ at the Capitol, which faithfully chronicles the activities of the administration, political and social, including the marvelous feats of Budget Commissioner Dawes and his invisible "savings," the goings out and comings in of the valiant Brigadier General Sawyer, the diversions of Liddle Boy and the bull pup, with the editorial page liberally spread over with the lemon meringue of adulation.

However, the Post is to be commended upon the accuracy of its vision and the boldness to point out "a fact which cannot much longer be concealed."

Democratic Constructive Tax Amendments

The proposed Democratic amendments to the pending tax bill were presented by Senator Simmons of North Carolina, in an enlightening speech dealing with the repeal or modification of existing taxes and the imposition of new taxes. The program as stated by him is as follows:

To increase the corporation tax in one step, making the maximum range from 2 1/2 per cent to 25 per cent, instead of a rate of 1 1/2 per cent, estimated to raise from $50,000,000 to $70,000,000 additional revenue.

To retain the capital stock tax on corporations, which it is proposed to repeal, estimated to yield about $75,000,000.

To repeal the $2,000 exemption on corporate incomes.

To confine individual exemptions to $2,000 in case of incomes below $20,000 and above $5,000, estimated to yield $15,000,000.

To restore the surtax to a maximum of 52 per cent on incomes in excess of $500,000, estimated to yield about $55,000,000.

Repeal of the transportation tax. Senator Simmons declared that the tax bill should not be made a party or a sectional question, but that it should be a bill fair in the distribution of the tax burden; that would raise sufficient revenue and contribute to the relief of business and industry.

Surplus Reduction of Rich 33 Times Greater Than of Others

Concerning the favoritism shown in the Republican tax bill, Senator Simmons in his masterful discussion of the measure said:

"Surtaxes have been reduced from 65 per cent to 32 per cent. They have come down to the deadline in that way, and what is the result? The result is that these 13,000 taxpayers on the upper side of that line are to get a further reduction in their taxes, a little stipend from the people of the United States, of $90,000,000 a year, while those 600,000 taxpayers earning between $5,000 and $66,000 a year by toll and investment and all the efforts which characterize the miscellaneous population of the country, get a reduction of only $18,000,000 on account of the surtax."

"Every single solitary man, who stands on the upper side of that line—this mobilized army of millionaires that has just finished its successful drive against Congress and the National Treasury—has got his surtax rate cut. It has been cut more than one-half. That is the millionaire class who, when the members of it want their taxes cut down, becomes a beggar class, begging alms of the government and of the hundred million of people of this country. They get their surtaxes cut in half."

"How about the poor unfortunates who are below that dead line which the Republican party has drawn? There is a reduction in surtax rates below that line of 1 per cent on incomes between $5,000 and $20,000; a reduction that is insignificant when compared with the reduction of 33 times as much, proportionately, given to the members of the millionaire class."

Promise of Tax Reduction Not Kept

Referring to President Harding's statement of a proposed saving of $350,000,000 from appropriations already made and of the Republican party promise to reduce taxes, Senator Simmons, speaking with the authority of one who has been Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate, said:

"According to the confession, according to the logical implications of the act, deliberately the administration confesses now that it was reckless in appropriating the people's money in this very year of our Lord, when they were already in full control of every department of the Government, for they now claim they then appropriated for departmental expenses $350,000,000 more than the departments needed. It is a mighty dangerous matter, Mr. President, a mighty reckless thing, for a great party, carrying out an economy program, to appropriate for these departments here in Washington more money than they need; for if they do not need it, they are pretty certain to find a need for it if it is appropriated."

There is one thing certain, the Republican Party is not, in this bill at least, either carrying out or even so much as attempting to carry out its pledge to the people that immediately upon coming into power it would proceed without delay, making it the business of first consideration upon the calendar, to reduce the burdensome and oppressive taxes that their leaders informed the country in the last campaign the Democratic Party had imposed upon them and was keeping upon them. These Republican leaders may and do propose some reductions in expenditures to be made up by borrowing money to fill the hole upon the faith and credit of the United States. They do propose some reductions in the taxes accruing in 1922. But in this whole year, during nine months of which when it ends the Republican Party will have been in control of every branch of the Government, there has been no redemption of the promise of immediate reduction; not only no redemption of that promise, but there has not been and will not be if the pending bill becomes a law, either as it was passed by the House or amended by the Finance Committee, any redemption of that promise."

There is one thing certain, the Republican Party is not, in this bill at least, either carrying out or even so much as attempting to carry out its pledge to the people that immediately upon coming into power it would proceed without delay, making it the business of first consideration upon the calendar, to reduce the burdensome and oppressive taxes that their leaders informed the country in the last campaign the Democratic Party had imposed upon them and was keeping upon them. These Republican leaders may and do propose some reductions in expenditures to be made up by borrowing money to fill the hole upon the faith and credit of the United States. They do propose some reductions in the taxes accruing in 1922. But in this whole year, during nine months of which when it ends the Republican Party will have been in control of every branch of the Government, there has been no redemption of the promise of immediate reduction; not only no redemption of that promise, but there has not been and will not be if the pending bill becomes a law, either as it was passed by the House or amended by the Finance Committee, any redemption of that promise."

U. S. DISARMAMENT DELEGATION MEETS

Washington, Oct. 11.—The American delegation to the armament conference will begin its duties here tomorrow by a general survey of the international situation into which it is to embark.

At a meeting which will bring the four delegates together for the first time since their selection by President Harding, data gathered from diplomatic, military and naval sources is to be laid on the table, and a preliminary effort made to predicate upon it the broad principles of this government's position in the armament negotiations.

It is expected to be one of many consultations of the delegation in preparation for the opening of the conference next month. President Harding will take an active role in the

GIANTS WIN PENNANT; TAKE EIGHTH GAME, 1-0

Nehf Beats Hoyt in Hurling
Duel; Rawlings Is Day's Star

New York, Oct. 13. —World's champions, 1921—the New York National League Baseball Club.

The Giants won the title, which will be theirs for the next year, by defeating the Yankees in the eighth game of the world's series at the Polo Grounds today.

The American League champions wound up fighting hard in a classic twirling duel between their pitching ace, Walter Hoyt, and Art Nehf, the Giants' star left-hander.

However, they lacked the necessary punch to win, the National League team taking the game by the score of 1 to 0 and the series, five games to three.

The Giant's victory gives Manager John J. McGraw his second world's championship team. The New York Nationals, seven-time pennant winners under McGraw's management, captured the world's title against the Athletics of the American League in 1905.

High-Class Pitching Won

As for the underlying reason for the success of the McGraw men the experts may differ, but there seems little cause to doubt that the most widely propounded opinion will be that it was because of a preponderance of high-class pitching ability.

The series showed but two of Manager Miller Huggins' twirlers capable of pitching winning ball—Mays and Hoyt—while the Giants put forward a trio of master workmen in Douglas, Barnes and Nehf.

As for the final and decisive game of the series, the winning of it was due to the superb pitching of Nehf against a moundman to whom he had twice lost the decision earlier in the series, allowing the American League batsmen but four hits, none of them better than singles and three of them coming with two men out.

Hardly a whit less creditable was the performance of Hoyt, the Yankee youngster who twice before in this series had taken Nehf's measure in close battles. Hoyt was in trouble in several innings, but except in the fatal first, when the Giants scored their only tally on two bases on balls and an error, he worked himself out brilliantly, once with a fine running catch by Fawcett to help along.

Some Tally Made in First

The Giants won by as costly an error as was introduced into the final battle of a rigorous world series campaign. Not even the famous Snodgrass muff will stand out in baseball history as glaringly as Peck's inglorious missing of the grounder batted by George Kelly with two on bases and two out in the first frame. Burns had opened the inning by rolling out via Baker, again at third in the injured McNally's stead. Bancroft coaxed a walk, getting the benefit of Umpire Oille Chilly's decision on two curves that appeared to have cut corners of the plate. Frisch fouled to Pipp for the second out. Young drew a pass that proved fatal, for it moved Bancroft down to second, and when Kelly's slam, straight at Peckinpaugh squirmed through his legs and rolled into left field, Bancroft dashed across the plate with what was to prove the only run of the afternoon. A run counted without a hit. Emil Meusel tapped weakly to Hoyt for the third out.

Ruth Falls in Final Gilt

The game, won by the Giants in the first inning, was probably saved for them in the ninth by as brilliant a folding performance as has been seen on the diamond in many a day.

One Yankee had been retired in the final frame. This one was "Babe" Ruth, again in uniform, but confining his activities heretofore in the game to the coaching lines.

The Yankee fans, who had been for eight innings watching that one lonely tally of the Giants loom larger and larger, picked up hope and cheered wildly as the "Hammer" stepped to the plate to bat for Wally Pipp.

The Home Run King made a valiant try, but his injured arm had taken the power from his swing and the best he could do with Nehf's puzzling delivery was to ground weakly to Kelly.

Aaron Ward was more fortunate. He walked out Nehf, who had been somewhat wild for several innings, and finally walked.

Rawlings The Home Run King Of Other Days Fields Brilliantly

Frank Baker, again in the lineup in place of the injured McNally, came next. With the count 3 and 2 he met one of Nehf's offerings squarely. It shot toward rightfield skimming the ground far to the left of John Rawlings. The rap looked like a sure hit, and with Ward legging it for third it promised to put the Yankees in a favorable scoring position if it got by.

But it did not pass. Throwing himself at the skimming sphere, Rawlings amid an amazed gasp from the crowd, reached out and clung to it with his left hand. Rolling over and transferring the ball to his right hand, Rawlings made the throw to Kelly at first while still on the ground, getting Baker by several feet.

It was then Kelly's turn, and, with a lightning-like and accurate throw he shot the ball across the diamond into the hands of Third-baseman Frank Frisch. A cloud of dust flew up over third as Ward slid into the bag. From the midst of it Umpire Quigley's form emerged, his right arm flung forth, motioning the runner out. The double play had been completed, the third Yankee of the inning had been retired, the game was over, and the Giants had won it and the world's championship.

BATTLE FOUGHT WITH SHINERS IN NELSON COUNTY

Louisville, Oct. 12. —One alleged moonshiner was slain, two officers were wounded and a cabin and still were destroyed by flames during two raids by federal prohibition agents last night and this morning near High Grove, Nelson county.

Seven prisoners were brought by the officers to Louisville. Two are alleged to have participated in the ambush, three were intercepted while hauling whisky in two automobiles, and two were arrested in a hotel at Mt. Washington for alleged connection with prohibition law violation.

Beyond Mt. Washington they first came up on two automobiles containing five persons and more than fifty gallons of whisky. The occupants were arrested. They were E. L. Green, 44, Springfield; Will Green, Bardstown; Olin Livers, 21, Louisville; W. G. Green, 16, and Miss Livers. The latter two were released when brought to Louisville. These people said they were en route from Bardstown to Louisville, and denied any knowledge of the shootings.

Further on the officers came upon two alleged moonshiners, in the taxicab of Chief Blackburn, they having forced the chauffeur at the point of a revolver, to drive them. Although the men were heavily armed, they obeyed the commands to surrender. One was said to be a brother of the slain moonshiner. They had commandeered the machine to scout the neighborhood.

What was said to be a deliberate trap was set to snare the raiders, as was shown by the fact that after the first battle fires were made on the road and at other points so that the approach of revenue men could be seen. According to reports, the moonshiners, expecting a return of the raiders before daylight, had plotted to ambush the revenue officers by the light of the burning cabin.

STATE IS PLANNING FISH HATCHERY AT PINEVILLE

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 12. —With establishment of a fish hatchery at Pineville on land given the Game and Fish Commission by Judge T. J. Asher, convenient sources of supply for eastern, western and central Kentucky streams will be provided.

There is a large hatchery at Frankfort and the overflow ponds in the Purchase are teeming with fish.

Dr. R. S. Tuttle, executive agent of the Commission, who has just returned from Pineville, said the site, containing four acres, is ideal.

Dr. Tuttle will establish a camp next week in Hallard County, where the work of seining and removing fish from the overflow ponds will continue until ice forms.

Reports indicate that game birds are more plentiful than in recent years. The dry summer saved the young. Next spring 5,000 Mexican quail will be imported.

EMERGENCY TARIFF EXTENSION AGREED

Washington, Oct. 12. —Passage of the permanent tariff bill, by February 1 is the hope of Chairman Boies Penrose of the Senate Finance Committee and J. W. Fordney of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Mr. Penrose said today he had conferred with Mr. Fordney and that they had agreed to extension of the emergency tariff law until that date.

Notices that hearings on the tariff bill will be resumed November 1 were sent out today to agricultural interests. The livestock schedule will be taken up first, Mr. Penrose said.

The Hartford Herald, $1.50 the year

OVER $18,000,000 PAID OUT BY STATE DURING LAST YEAR

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 12. —The state of Kentucky received 16,222,962.22 from all sources and paid out $18,507,990.94 for the actual expenses of running the state government and the various institutions, according to a financial statement made public here today by John J. Craig, state auditor.

The balance of $714,071.28 over expenditures was paid on the state debt.

The largest individual item of receipts was $6,611,645.69 in "sheriffs' revenue," or taxes collected by county sheriffs and paid into the state treasury.

Motor vehicle licenses were next, bringing in $1,756,460.41 while receipts direct to the state road fund from both state and federal sources totaled $1,375,526.06.

Other large sources of income include race track licenses, which are assessed at $2,500 a day, totalling $319,000; inheritance taxes, $435,562.32; fines and bond forfeitures, $374,312.06; tax on foreign insurance companies, $622,922.69; railroads, $1,220,630.17; whisky, $137,968.32; beer, $1,770.40. One per cent tax on crude oil, $304,273.92. Tax on bank deposits, $285,130.14; one cent gasoline tax, $345,831.16.

The largest single item of disbursement was $4,558,293.85 for public schools. The second largest single item of disbursement was $2,910,099.38 for highways.

Penal and charitable institutions received $2,113,239.06. This, however, does not include $59,000 paid for a farm purchased near Frankfort to establish a paupers' idiot colony and $28,302.29 spent at the reformatory out of the petty cash fund which does not pass through the treasurer's office.

The Confederate home at Pewee Valley cost during the year $89,109.20; Confederate pensions, $333,113.86, and the operation of the pension department, $6,467.54.

Conveyance of lunatics cost $9,666.75; criminal prosecutions, $22,831.40; county tax commissioner's salary, $347,040.82; care of idiots, $121,801.93; agricultural department, $136,445.67; school for the deaf, $103,500; school for the blind, $65,500; paid to circuit judges and commonwealth's attorneys, $230,056.79; state board of health, $205,384.50; University of Kentucky, $441,519.38; Eastern State Normal, $127,151.60; Western State Normal, $127,151.60, and public schools, $4,558,293.85.

PRESBYTERIANS MERGE SCHOOLS

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 12. —Presbyterians of both synods in Kentucky united today in an educational policy by which the Southern Presbyterian Church and the Northern Presbyterian Church joined in control of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Louisville; Centre College and Kentucky College for Women, Danville.

The girls' school is to become a standard college, one of the two for girls in the Mississippi Valley, south of the Ohio River. The other is in New Orleans.

Control of Schools Shared
The Southern synod will have two-thirds of the trustees of the seminary and overtures have been made to the Tennessee synods to join in control of the institution.

The synods will share equally in control of Centre College and the Kentucky College for Women. Each will manage its own mountain institutions but neither will attempt to establish a junior or standard college without co-operation of the other.

A campaign for $1,000,000 will be launched soon by the synods. Of this $300,000 will go to the seminary, $200,000 each to Centre and the Kentucky College for Women, $100,000 to take the place of the Carnegie fund for retired professors at Centre and $100,000 to each synod for the mountain schools.

TRAINED YODELING CAT USED BY PEDDLER TO COLLECT OLD SHOES

Chicago, Oct. 12. —Officials of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway several days ago reported to police that a carload of shoes had been stolen.

Today came a tip that Frank McGee, a brakeman employed by the Northwestern, had been peddling shoes on the South Side. Lient Wm. Shoemaker was sent to investigate and here is the story that kept McGee out of a cell:

"I saw that I was never going to get rich chaperoning freight cars, so I decided on the profession of cat yodeling and shoe collecting."

"First, I obtained a good alley cat and made its voice worse by making it listen to the phonograph next door. Then I took it on a midnight yodeling tour, putting it through its paces under apartment windows.

"I had figured that I could count on only one shoe from an apartment and had arranged with a one-legged beggar's guild on the South Side to purchase my collections.

"But that cat worked too hard. I got at least one pair of shoes from each apartment, to say nothing of one black eye from a janitor. Because of that my stock is only half sold.

"In the closet there you can see for yourself twenty-eight pairs of shoes, five assorted rubbers, three overshoes, nine bedroom slippers, ten alarm clocks, three hairbrushes, one baby's hank, one shaving mug and one crutch."

RADIUM PIT CALLED FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

Chicago, Oct. 12. —How radium, administered internally, could prolong human life and make old age almost a delight was described today by Dr. Stillman Bailey, addressing a National meeting of the therapists at the LaSalle Hotel.

Dr. Bailey told of the renewed youth of the men working in the radium mines of Colorado and their immunity of prevalent diseases. He attributed this to their drinking water charged with radium.

"The rays caught in sugar of milk and made up into tablets and taken internally," he said, "seem to work miracles. One of the principal causes of old age is hardening of the arteries due to increased blood pressure. This the radium tablets prevent. Acute pains disappear as if by magic. Jaded appetites become keen again. Red blood corpuscles have increased by 250,000 within forty-eight hours."

Dr. Bailey also exhibited photographs of plants whose growth had been stimulated by radium.

PERSHING ACCEPTS BRITISH INVITATION

Paris, Oct. 12. —General Pershing has accepted the British Government's invitation to assist in the presentation of the Congressional Medal of Honor to the "unknown warrior" of Great Britain in Westminster Abbey. It is probable the ceremony will take place on October 17.

In transmitting his tentative acceptance through Ambassador Harvey in London, General Pershing has asked Mr. Harvey to take up the matter with the British Foreign Office and War Office, saying if October 17 is a date agreeable to the British Government he will be glad to go to London on that day, canceling an engagement he had made in this city.

$37,008,000 LBS. KEN. TUCKY TOBACCO CROP

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12. —The 1921 tobacco crop, according to the October 1 estimate of the Department of Agriculture, will be approximately 991,564,000 pounds of which approximately 337,068,000 pounds will be produced in Kentucky. Because of insufficient appropriations, no figures are compiled by the Department of Agriculture classifying the estimates of tobacco production by types, officials of the Bureau of Crop Estimates pointed out today. Such figures were issued, they said, until 1919, when they discontinued.

Officials of the Census Bureau also said that no figures are compiled by the Federal Government classifying tobacco production by types as grown in each State.

ILLITERACY IN U. S. DROPS 1.7 PER CENT IN 10 YEARS

Washington, Oct. 12. —Illiteracy in the United States decreased from 7.7 to 6 per cent in the last decade, according to a preliminary announcement tonight by the Census Bureau. The last census showed 4,931,905 persons of more than 10 years unable to write in any language against 5,516,163 in 1910.

As compared with 1910 every State except Connecticut showed a decrease.

LOAN OF $100,000,000 FOR FARMS, IS U. S. PLAN

Washington, Oct. 12. —The Federal Farm Loan Board expects to loan $100,000,000 to farmers by next February, according to information given today by the board to a committee of Senators representing the unofficial agricultural "bloc" of the Senate.

His Father's Son
"Tell me truly, does the baby really take after his father?" asked Mrs. Jones.

"Yes, indeed—why, when we took the darling's bottle away, he tried to creep down the cellar stairs."

LIQUID REFRESHMENTS

To the taxpayers of the county the effrontery of the Hartford Republican's apology for the water scandal must have seemed like adding insult to injury. Of all the insane, indeed childish excuses for the waste of public money in paying eight times the worth of the service rendered! The water company was not making expenses, it says; therefore it was obligatory upon the Fiscal Court to pay high enough rates to keep the company from suspending operations! Why not undertake to keep up the ice company and a coal company? They also furnish commodities that are used in the public buildings. But the public feels no obligation to keep up all such or any one of them. Water is a convenience but not such a one as justifies the wanton waste of public money therefor.

This pandering to the exorbitant demands of corporate interests is what breeds profiteering. We do not know that the water company here has never returned a dividend on its investment, but if that should be true, it is no reason for the county to single it out for the helping hand of charity. The spectacle of the Hartford Republican presenting Messrs. M. L. Heavrin, E. G. Barruss, et al., otherwise known as the Kentucky Light & Power Co. as masquerading in the role of the mendicant is indeed, ludicrous.

We are further regaled with the claim that our philanthropic public service corporation has been forced to charge such excessive rates because of the increased cost of fuel, supplies, labor, &c. Indeed! It's "prison" notice of suspension of service, published for two months before the present water contract was graciously offered to the Fiscal Court, stated that "the burden of high taxes" as well as a contributing cause of suspension. We don't hear about that cause now. It mesnt, of course, its taxes, not yours, Mr. Voter.

Another mystery is why it costs eight times as much to furnish Rough Creek water to our public buildings as it does to furnish one-half as much water from Green River to the McLean County public buildings. And is coal so much higher here, also right in the heart of the coal fields? The Public Service Company of Calhoun is satisfied with $7.50 per month for twice the service for which the Ohio County Fiscal Court pays $60 per month! Will some good brother please pass the hat for the poor water company.

SIX YEARS BEHIND

A candidate for office is in hard lines when he attempts to use the alleged shortcomings of his predecessor, against whom he is not now running, as campaign arguments in his favor. Unfortunately, for him, Judge Slack is not now running against Judge Birkhead. Neither can he consistently draw the names of other former judges of the district into this fight. The present Republican candidate for Circuit Judge, is claiming great credit for having selected an equal number of jury commissioners from each party. Whether or not these officers are selected on that basis is immaterial. They never have an opportunity to act any way but fairly and there has never in the past been such an imputation. Does Judge Slack now mean to throw such aspersions on the memory of the jurists who have preceded him as judge of the Sixth Judicial District?

The Hartford Republican also seeks a crumb of comfort for its candidate for Circuit Judge from the alleged slightly better percentage of affirmances in the Court of Appeals of his decisions than was shown by his immediate predecessor, Judge Birkhead. However, as was to be expected, our editorial friend overlooked the fact that conditions have materially changed in the realm of litigation in the circuit courts and that the burden of the circuit judge has been materially lightened within the last six years. Changes in our laws of procedure have greatly simplified the task of the judge both as to the number and nature of suits, thus materially lessening the chance of error. Certainly we should have progress and substantial progress in the conduct of the courts as well as in other lines. A comparison of merit has value only when the standard of comparison is perfection. A fifty per cent efficient officer is in a poor position when his only defense of his poor record is the claim that the record of a predecessor may have been worse. Half-time efficiency speaks for itself.

The nation is threatened with a very serious situation caused by the strike order of the leading unions of railway employees. With millions of men already unemployed the addition of two million more to the number will be most calamitous. The strike order was voted because of the recent ruling of the United States Railroad Labor Board reducing the wages of railway workers 12 percent and the declared intention of the railroad executives to seek a greater reduction. As is usual in such cases both the executives and the employees are determined and justice is somewhere between the extreme claims of each party. But at a time like this the interests of the public are paramount. A spirit of justice and patriotism should dictate to both owners and operatives liberal concessions and compromises. But in any event the common weal of the nation must dictate the course to be pursued. If necessary, the iron hand of the national government should intervene to avert the threatened disaster. Public sentiment would support such a course, even if it were necessary for the Federal government to take over the operation of the railroads for the time being. In the warfare between labor and capital the rights of the non-combatants must be respected.

We heartily agree with our contemporary in urging that justice be vindicated in the case of the recent alleged mistreatment of an aged man and his wife near Mangan. If such a revolting crime was committed, the facts should be ascertained and the guilty parties apprehended and punished. We always stand for law enforcement, but especially does the protection of womanhood, the home and home ties enlist our interest and efforts.

Let us all work together to wipe out, as far as possible, the stain of such barbarity from the 'scutcheon of Ohio County.

We call the attention of our readers to the editorial of the Owensboro Messenger of Sunday, the 16th. inst. apropos of Judge Slack's claims of non-partisanship. It aptly characterizes such bluncombe as "Nonpartisan Chaff." We wonder if the Hartford Republican will now regard the Messenger as such an exemplary political mentor. Our Owensboro contemporary is courteous and fair to a fellow-townsmen, but it is apparent that it believes in truthful advertising, political as well as otherwise.

For a rare brand of logic we can recommend the Hartford Republican "writer." But his labored sophistry avails nothing in the face of facts. In truth there are times when candidates, legislative, executive and judicial should be supported as men rather than as partisans, but only when they appear in their true colors and their records justify support.

By the way, speaking of the Hancock Clarion's "Slack bouquet," had you noticed that the issue quoted was dated nearly two years ago? Get up a little closer yet please. What does the Clarion say now in favor of the Judge's re-election? Many an opinion has changed in two years.

We must call the attention of the voters to the Republican's incorrect statement as to the relations of the city of Hartford with the water company. The city council does not now have and has never had a water contract with the local water company.

CHINESE BANDITS ARE BOLD

Also Thoroughly Organized and Far Better Disciplined Than Are the Regular Troops.

The Japan Advertiser summarizes an article by an anonymous writer, who describes himself as "a retired Manchurian bandit," which was recently published in Taiyui. He classifies these professional looters into five groups: those led by former government officials who have lost office; those led by "ordinary people"; those led by men of military experience who are supported by Chinese army officers; those led by men with a political purpose, generally financed at present by the Bolsheviks, and those who "take to the woods" as a protest against misgovernment.

These bandits are organized according to the present system of the Chinese army, into sections of 100 men or more and battalions of several times that number. Each section is composed of three companies and each company of three squads, with a full complement of officers. They use Russian, Japanese and Chinese rifles and have a few machine guns and mountain guns. The equipment is the private property of the leaders. Discipline is far stricter than in the regular Chinese army.

The organizations are recruited in April or May and disbanded in October or November. During the season when inclement weather makes banditry disagreeable, the members labor as ordinary coolies. Their harvest season is during the summer, when they establish themselves in "dens" and send out scouting parties to look up likely booty and opportunities for raiding. After the expense of the expeditions has been deducted each season, "the profits" are distributed in prearranged shares among the members. A good leader expects to make about $5,000, an ordinary follower $150 to $200 out of a season's campaign. These robber bands generally work in secret agreement with Chinese officials.—Living Age.

Riley Got $500 a Word.

Heirs of the late James Whitcomb Riley, the Indiana poet, find that he got $500 a word royalties on his love poem, "An Old Sweetheart of Mine." This is said to be the most profitable piece of writing per word on record. Stevenson sold "Treasure Island" to a newspaper for $3 a column. "Paradise Lost" brought Milton only $25. Times have changed, thanks to the printing press and business system which literary genius used to hold in contempt.

As late as a half century ago, artists starved. Business has made the arts profitable. Clyde Fitch in eighteen years received $1,500,000 in royalties from his plays.

At Last!

She was very extravagant in her tastes, especially where hats were concerned, and when they had been married for five years Pat realized that it was no joke supporting a wife.

One morning she appeared at breakfast, and was more than usually and-able and Pat suspected another raid on his bank balance. He was not disappointed.
"Oh, Patrick, dear," she said, "I dreamed last night that you bought me such a lovely five-guinea hat!"
"Did you, my darling?" returned Pat. I'm pleased indeed, for sure it's the first dream of a hat you've had what ain't cost me a cent!"—London Ideas.

BEYOND COMPREHENSION.

"A curious case came up in the court of domestic relations this morning."
"What was it all about?" asked the meek little man.
"A wife charged that her husband cut out the department store advertisements from the family newspaper before he'd let her read it. He was a brute, wasn't he?"
"Certainly," replied the meek little man. "But what I don't understand is how he managed to get hold of the paper first."

His Was That Kind.

"Are you interested in a loose-leaf encyclopedia?"
"None, got one."
"Indeed! Whose?"
"The Britannica."
"Didn't know they published a loose-leaf edition!"
"You ought to see mine after the children had used the volumes as building blocks a few years."

A Strategist.

"Hiram," said Mrs. Cornfossel, "why did you insist on our boy Josh taking music lessons? You know he hasn't any talent."
"I wasn't thinkin' about the talent. As long as I hear him practicin' on the violin, I know he isn't skylarkin' with the hired man nor teachin' the stock."

NO—NOT ONE-QUARTER

She: Miss Antiqua says all men are liars.
He: What does she know about men?
She: I told her she didn't know half the truth about 'em.

A Rare Confession.

"Here's an interesting contribution to the literature of the day."
"What is it?"
"The memoirs of a former pagilistic champion."
"What makes his book extraordinary?"
"He acknowledges that he was licked by a better man."

Mail Courses.

"What's Gribble doing now?"
"Teaching people how to write motion picture scenarios by mail."
"He used to run a correspondence school of astronomy. He must be a versatile chap."
"Not at all. He knows as little about one as the other."

Nothing to It.

"I'll have to fine you for speeding."
"But, squire, we came to you to be married and we have only $10 for your fee."
"You weren't speeding. You could have gone twice as fast and not been speeding."

U. OF K. EXTENSION SCHOOLS TO OPEN

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 13.—Extension schools, conducted by the Department of University Extension, University of Kentucky, will be opened in several cities in the State this week.

At Paris, the school will offer a series of lectures by university professors. Dr. Edward Tutbill, head of the Department of History and Political Science, will deliver a series of lectures, and Prof. E. F. Farquar of the English Department, on the contemporary drama.

It is expected that the attendance will be made up largely of teachers in the Paris public schools and Bourbon County schools. Extension courses have been given in Paris for a year and credit toward a degree is given on the work done.

A course of lectures will also be opened this week at Georgetown to be given to the teachers of that city. Dr. Edward Sles, professor of Educational Administration, will give lectures on education.

The university is planning courses in the mountain section of South-eastern Kentucky. Mrs. C. H. Bollinger Harlan, a graduate of the Teachers' College, Columbia University, will conduct the courses.

ILLINOIS WILL SUE ITS EX-TREASURERS

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Suits to recover money alleged to be due the State of Illinois will be filed at Springfield within the coming week against State Treasurers for several years back, it was announced by Edward J. Brundage, Attorney General today.

The suits will charge that interest on public funds has been withheld and the defendants will include Gov. Len Small, Lieutenant Governor Sterling, both former Treasurers: Andrew Russell, auditor of public accounts, and all treasurers Mr. Brundage said.

The Attorney General declined to specify the amounts to be named in the suits or the number of defendants. Treasurers for several terms would be included, he said.

CHEWING GUM IS CAUSE OF SPIRITED DEBATE IN SENATE

Washington, Oct. 12.—Adoption by the senate of the Republican compromise plan for repeal of all the transportation taxes next January first, was completed today with the acceptance without a dissenting vote of an amendment removing the tax on parcel post packages. Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, sought to extend the repeal on levies in messages by telegraph, telephone, cable and radio, but his motion was voted down.

Committee amendments to the bill accepted included those imposing license taxes on brokers and other manufacturers' taxes of two cents a gallon on cereal beverages, still drinks and unfermented fruit juices; 7½ cents a gallon on finished fountain syrups and five cents a pound on carbonic acid gas.

Until the chewing gum tax was reached the senate made fairly rapid progress on the bill. But there it stuck for nearly two hours with a discussion of chewing gum, tariff and other subjects. Republican proposal to repeal the two per cent tax on this gum was opposed by Senator Reed, who said the senate had voted to retain $28,500,000 in taxes upon senders and receivers of messages by wire while it was proposed "to refund one twenty-eighth of that amount to Wrigley."

"Who made this bargain?" asked Senator Reed, with reference to the compromise plan to knock out the chewing gum tax. "Who overturned the action of the committee? When was it agreed to? It demands an explanation when a gentleman can escape $1,000,000 in taxes on something that is useless and worthless. What was the influence that reached behind the doors and took the tax off Mr. Wrigley?"

Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, said the information before the finance committee was that factories of the American Chicle company were closed down and that the removal of the tax had been proposed to get those plants started up again. He declared that so far as the committee knew "Mr. Wrigley" did not care about the tax; he never had asked that it be removed."

LLOYD GEORGE IS TO SIT IN ARMS PARLEY

London, Oct. 13.—Prime Minister David Lloyd George has now definitely decided to go to the Washington disarmament conference, and unless something entirely unforeseen occurs he will sail about November 1, probably in a warship in order to save time.

It will have to be something extraordinary that will prevent his sailing, for he has made up his mind that it is necessary for him to attend the opening sessions to make himself known to the delegates and particularly to get acquainted with President Warren G. Harding and Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes. He expects to remain in Washington for a week or ten days, and will return later when the conference gets into swing or when important decisions are to be taken.

How They Did It

An old farmer and his wife lived near the village church. One warm Sunday evening while they sat dozing on the porch, the crickets set up a loud chirping.

"I just love to hear that chirpin' noise," said the old man drowsily, and before the crickets had stopped, he was fast asleep.

Soon after the church choir broke into a beautiful chant.

"Just listen to that," exclaimed his wife; "ain't it beautiful?"

"Yes," murmured the old farmer sleepily, "they do it with their hind legs."

No Acorn

In Ohio they tell a story of a man who brought for entrance into a college there, a student, his son, for whom he wished a shorter course than the regular one.

"My boy can never take all that in," said he. "He wants to get through quicker. Can you arrange it?"

"Oh, yes," said the president. "He can take a short course; it all depends on what you want to make of him. When God wants to make an oak he takes a hundred years, but He takes only two months to make a squash."

Ever have a "low-down" pain in the back?

In the "small," right over the hips?

That's the home of backache. If it's caused by weak kidneys, Use Doan's Kidney Pills.

Hartford people testify to their worth. Ask your neighbor? Read a case of it:

E. L. Ashley, farmer, Griffin St., Hartford, says: "I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a reliable remedy. They helped me considerably when I was troubled with backache and a too frequent action of my kidneys. This remedy helped my kidneys to act better and relieved my back. Doan's made me feel better generally and I am glad to recommend them." (Statement given November 17, 1916.)

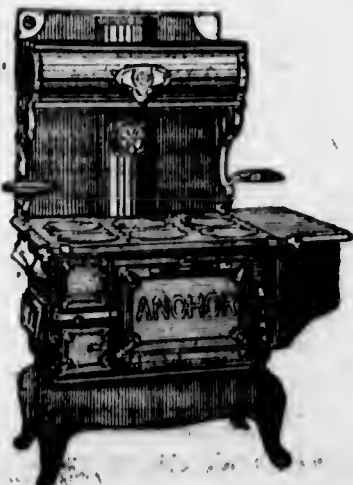

On January 25, 1921, Mr. Ashley said: "I still use a few Doan's Kidney Pills whenever I have trouble with my kidneys and they never fail to promptly cure me. I consider Doan's have no equal for kidney trouble and I am glad to tell anyone about them."

INFORMATION FROM THE EXPERIMENT STATION — AGRICULTURAL PAPERS AND THE COUNTY AGENT'S OFFICE

Kentucky Crop Report For Oct. 1921

With the growing season almost ended, except for very late tobacco and a small amount of the late corn that is now maturing, Kentucky's crop conditions now indicate the production of approximately 89,324,000 bushels of corn compared to 100,650,000 bushels last year, and 337,068,000 pounds of tobacco compared to 467,500,000 pounds produced in 1920. The United States entire tobacco crop this year is now estimated at 991,564,000 pounds compared to 1,508,064,000 pounds last year, or about 34 percent decrease.

These estimates were issued today at Louisville and Frankfort by H. F. Bryant, Kentucky representative of the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, and State Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna. The following estimates of other crops produced in Kentucky this year, with comparisons with 1920 crops, were issued at the same time: oats 6,574,000 bus. compared to 8,225,000 bus. in 1920; barley 96,000 bushels compared to 112,000 bus. last year; potatoes 3,775,000 bushels compared to 6,435,000 bushels last year; sweet potatoes 1,769,000 bushels compared to 1,890,000; sorghum molasses 4,334,000 gallons compared to 4,845,000 gallons; clover seed 30,000 bushels compared to 52,000 bushels; apples 1,215,000 bushels compared to 5,780,000 bushels last year; and pears 29,000 bushels compared to 308,000 bushels produced last year.

Condition of minor crops is as follows: — buckwheat 90 percent; pasture 96; field peas 85; cabbage average yield per acre 2 tons; onions percent of normal yield 83; average yield per acre 95 bushels; grapes condition 47 percent; pears 8; broom corn percent of normal yield per acre 85; sorghum for sirup, condition 86, average yield of sirup per acre 90.3 gallons.

Campbell Dairying Makes Rapid Growth

Campbell county's dairying industry has advanced rapidly during the past year partly as a result of the work done by the cow testing association organized among farmers of that district, according to a report made by County Agent H. F. Link following the organization of the association for another year. Before the association was formed the purebred dairy cattle in the county did not number more than a dozen while at the present time there are more than 90 purebred cows and heifers in the county bull association, the organization of which marked another step in the advancement of the industry. With a co-operative testing association and a similar association whose members use purebred sires Campbell county stands out as one of the most progressive dairy counties in the state.

Soda In Water Keeps Pots And Pans Bright

Washing pots and pans after each time they are used in hot, soapy water containing a small amount of washing soda is perhaps the best means of keeping these kitchen utensils clean and slightly, home economics specialists at the College of Agriculture say. One pound of washing soda to four quarts of water makes a solution of the right strength to add to the wash water. Where it is necessary to scour the metal of the utensils to keep them in good condition it is said that whitening gives satisfactory results with the least wear on the metal. The acids of such common foods as rhubarb, tomatoes, lemons or oranges will often remove discolorations. Rinsing the utensils with boiling water and drying them thoroughly before they are put away also is helpful in keeping them clean and bright, the specialists say.

Whitening moistened with any food acid such as those mentioned is good for aluminum. Washing soda should not be used on utensils made of this material since the alkali which it contains darkens the metal. A weak soda solution often will remove grease from brass while whitening and a dilute acid will remove tarnish. Brass may be polished with rotten stone and sweet oil and dried with soft cloth. Copper may be cleaned in the same way.

Kerosene will remove rust and grease from iron. Boiling utensils of this kind in a strong solution of washing soda also will remove rust. In some cases a strong abrasive such as emery may be necessary in order to remove all the rust. Too much scrubbing with harsh substances soon wears off nickel plate, the specialists say. Daily care with hot soap and water prevents tarnish while a polish may be obtained by using whitening moistened with ammonia.

Badly discolored tin may be freshened by boiling it a few minutes in a strong solution of soda and water. The tinware should be removed immediately after the boiling is completed and washed, rinsed and dried. Kerosene is the best cleaning agent for porcelain since abrasives used on this kind of material remove the glaze. Iron rust may be removed with dilute hydrochloric acid. Porcelain should be washed and rinsed thoroughly after the acid has been used. Better results can be obtained in making coffee and tea if the pots used for this purpose are thoroughly scalded, dried and aired before being put away, the specialists say.

Hens For Breeding Best Selected Now

With the culling season almost over and the loafer hens removed from the flock the next important thing for poultry raisers of the State to do in order to increase the profits from their flocks is to select the hens that are to be kept for breeders, poultry specialists say. This is the logical time of the year to select the breeders, according to J. R. Smyth, field agent in poultry from the College of Agriculture, since it is possible to distinguish them now by following the culling method whereas in the spring all birds in the flock will look alike. The hens that are laying now are the ones to keep as breeders because experience has shown that they are the heavy layers, the specialists say.

It is important that the hens to be used as breeders have large capacity which is indicated by a broad back and deep body together with high vitality which is indicated by the conformation of the birds. The back of the desirable breeder should carry its width back to the tail while the depth of the body measured between the ends of the breast and pelvic bones should be at least the width of four fingers when the hen is in laying condition.

General indications of high vitality in hens are a broad, deep head; bright, prominent eye; long, deep body; strong, parallel legs; stylish carriage and an active disposition. These are the points to look for in picking out the birds that are to be kept for breeders, the specialists say. Details of the culling method which also may be used in picking out the birds that are to be eliminated from the breeding flock are contained in Circular No. 101 which may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington.

Many Farmers Plan For Winter Reading

Many Kentucky farmers are making plans to follow helpful reading courses during the coming winter months if the interest shown by thousands who have had their names placed on the newly revised mailing lists being prepared by the College of Agriculture at Lexington is taken as an indication. During the past few months more than 5,000 farmers of the State have expressed their desire to receive free circulars and bulletins on timely agricultural problems from the institution while as many as 250 farmers have written to the college in one day to have their names entered. During a period of three weeks an average of 200 names were received each day. Poultry and livestock feeding and poultry housing are the most popular subjects with the farmers, who already have had their names placed on the lists.

Farmers To Have Help In Fight On Blight Of Spuds

In order to help farmers of the State combat the late blight of potatoes which this year resulted in heavy losses, plans are already being made by the extension of the College of Agriculture for winter and spring meetings and summer spraying demonstrations to show farmers of the State the importance of this method of controlling the disease, according to an announcement by J. S. Gardner, field agent in horticulture under whose direction the work is being carried on. Dates for meetings are being arranged on request in counties where farmers were troubled with the disease and other plans being made to assist as many growers as possible in reducing the loss which blight causes to their crops.

A number of farmers this year controlled the blight in their fields by spraying with Bordeaux mixture as many as three times during the season. Some sprayed only once while others sprayed their crops twice. Fields which were sprayed three times have been practically free of the pest while heavy losses occurred in those which were not sprayed, according to Mr. Gardner.

Carroll County Making Plans For Fair November 4-5

Plans are rapidly being completed by Carroll county farmers, County Agent G. C. Rount and other interested parties for a farmers' fair to be held in that county Nov. 4 and 5, according to reports from the county. Corn, tobacco, poultry, dairy and beef cattle and hogs will be featured in the fair which is expected to be one of the most elaborate ever held in the county.

Since tobacco is one of the main crops of the county exhibits of this crop are expected to be among the most important ones at the fair. More than $100 in cash premiums have already been offered as prizes to successful tobacco exhibitors. The final premium list of the fair is expected to be more than $600, according to County Agent Rount. Members of the junior agricultural club in the county who are raising pigs and poultry as their club projects will participate in the fair.

Corn Silage Better Than Sorghum Experiments Show

Corn silage is slightly better for beef production than sorghum silage when the crops are considered on an acre basis from the standpoint of economy, according to results of tests conducted by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station which have just been published in bulletin form for distribution to interested farmers. The publication gives the five-year results of growing corn and sorghum for silage under both field and plot conditions and the three-year averages of feeding trials to determine the efficiency of these two feeds as beef producers. Twenty head of steers were divided into lots of ten each and fed each winter, one lot receiving corn silage and supplementary feeds and the other sorghum silage and the same kinds of supplementary feeds. The bulletin points out that the chief advantages to be derived from substituting sorghum for corn silage are that sorghum will stand a drought better than corn and is not as easily hurt by frost.

Taking into account the larger yield of sorghum an acre, the higher cost of producing sorghum silage, the cheaper value placed on steers that received sorghum silage, the greater gains made by steers receiving corn silage, and the larger amount of sorghum silage and supplementary feeds required with sorghum silage to produce 100 pounds of gain, sorghum silage is 92.2 percent as economical as corn silage for beef production, the bulletin states. One acre of sorghum silage and supplementary feeds produced 36.4 percent more beef than did one acre of corn silage and supplementary feeds but it cost an average of $24.55 to produce 100 pounds of beef with the sorghum silage and $21.84 with the corn silage when the two were charged at the same price. Steers receiving corn silage made an average of 24 pounds more gain each day than those receiving sorghum silage, the publication points out. The bulletin is No. 233 and may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington.

Farm And Home News From Over Kentucky

Practically every display made by Henderson county farmers in a recent exposition held at Evansville, Ind., was awarded a premium, a report from County Agent D. W. Martin states. The exhibits included those in hogs, chickens and fruit.

Exhibits made by junior agricultural club members at the recent King Community Fair, Knox county, featured the display of farm products, according to a report of County Agent Earl Mayhew. More than 75 birds, 14 pigs, 12 calves and 20 entries of corn were displayed by the junior farmers.

Lee county farmers co-operating with County Agent T. H. Jones and local business firms are making plans for a corn and poultry show to be held at Beattyville in November, according to reports from the county. A number of banks in that district have already offered money for premiums.

So completely have Marion county farmers replaced scrub sires with purebred ones that there are only about five remaining scrubs in that district, according to results of a recent survey made by County Agent H. J. Childress. There are more than 80 purebred sires in the county at the present time and plans are being made to increase this number by replacing the remaining scrubs.

Laurel county farmers are showing increased interest in winter cover crops to protect their fields during the coming months, according to a report of County Agent F. H. Wilson. Large numbers of them have attended meetings in which the value of such crops have been explained. An increased acreage of rye and vetch is expected to be seeded on farms in the county, according to present estimations.

As a result of a cover crop campaign conducted in Laine county by County Agent J. W. Jones in co-operation with farmers of that section 30 percent more rye is expected to be sown in that county this fall than was sown last year.

FORMER SERVICE MEN TO ORGANIZE TO WORK FOR STATE BONUS

Lexington, Oct. 12. —At a mass meeting held at the Courthouse here last night steps were taken to form a permanent organization of former service men in every county in Kentucky to fight for State bonus for men and women who served in the World War.

More than 350 former service men from Fayette, Clark, Montgomery, Madison, Woodford, Jessamine, Johnson, Powell, Magoffin, Perry, Laurel, Rockcastle, Bell, Harrison, Whitley, Morgan, Marion, Muhlenburg, Franklin and Boyle Counties attended the meeting. One address was delivered by W. C. G. Hobbs of Lexington, former Representative in the Legislature who lost a son in France.

"If America had entered the World War six months after she did the Germans would have gained control of the world, and those same politicians who howl down the suggestion of a bonus for soldiers of Kentucky would have to pay Germany's war debt for hundreds of years to come," Mr. Hobbs declared.

It was decided by unanimous consent to ask candidates for political offices to state their reasons for being absent from the meeting, after being asked to be present, and to state their views on the bonus question.

STOCK LAW ELECTION NOTICE POND RUN PRECINCT.

W. D. Robertson, et al., vs. Notice. Stock Law Election in Pond Run Voting Precinct, No. 37.

Pursuant to a judgment rendered by the Ohio County Court, at its regular September term 1921, notice is hereby given that on Tuesday November 8th, 1921, same being the regular election day, a poll will be opened for the purpose of ascertaining the will of the legal voters residing in Pond Run Voting Precinct No. 37, upon the following question, "Are you in favor of making it unlawful for cattle or any species thereof to run at large on the public highways and uninclosed lands of Pond Run Voting Precinct, No. 37?"

Given under my hand, this 9th day of September, 1921.

JUST BURROWS OF ANIMALS

Mystery of What Was Known as the "Devil's Corkscrew" Has Been Considered Solved.

Of the many fossils which have come out of the mountains and plains of the West, few have excited wider interest than the "devil's corkscrew," found in rocks of the Miocene period, in northwestern Nebraska. They are usually white, and stand out clearly against the bluff background of the rock which incloses them, often attaining a length of 15 feet, with many twists and turns, ending at times in a large bulb, with occasional side passages. When first discovered it was thought that these gigantic "corkscrews" were huge petrified vines or roots of some strange plant. Study of the "corkscrews," however, failed to reveal any traces of plant structure. Later the skeleton of an animal like the badger was found in a large bulb near the end of the "corkscrew," and bones of a small camel and small deer were found in others. After that it was discovered that many of them contained bones of a small burrowing animal about the size of the western prairie dog. Excavation of actual recent prairie dog burrows, after filling them with thin plaster of paris, showed an interesting fact; the burrows of the prairie dog and the prehistoric "corkscrews" were closely similar. The mystery is considered solved.

OLD MYSTERY OF THE SEA

What Became of Fine Liner President Which Disappeared in the Year 1941?

Among the modern sea mysteries none is more baffling than the vanishing of the liner President in 1941. The vessel was the latest word in luxurious ocean travel, having but lately been launched. And that day in March when she sailed from New York for Liverpool every vessel in the North river paid tribute to her size and superiority. She was 268 feet long and of 2,360 tons.

Early in April reports began to filter into America from Liverpool that the President had not arrived, and as the days sped on far into the summer the agony of suspense on both sides the ocean grew. On her passenger list had been the names of many prominent persons, among whom were the celebrated comedian, Tyrone Powers, George G. Cookman and the duke of Devonshire. A few more than 100 passengers were aboard the President. Whether the President foundered in some violent gale, was sunk or crushed by icebergs, or was destroyed by fire, no man to this day has been able to tell, for not even a splinter of wreckage was ever reported seen.

Paradise of the Hunter.

Kamchatka forms a peninsula at the extreme southeastern termination of the great Siberian continent. Game is pursued by the inhabitants all the year round except in May, June and July. Sable trapping is a favorite pursuit of the native hunter, the skin of this little animal being accepted as the gold currency of the peninsula.

The business of buying and selling is carried on with the natives through middlemen—Siberians, Chinese and well-to-do Kamchatkians—who, while faithfully serving their masters, make a fat living out of it for themselves.

A veritable paradise for the big-game hunter, Kamchatka contains reindeer, caribou, big-horn mountain sheep (Ovis monticola), the great gray wolf and many varieties of bear, all in quantities unknown, says an exchange, in any other quarter of the globe.

Antiquity of Porto Rico.

Ethnologists have reason for thinking that Porto Rico and the adjoining islands may have been peopled from the valley of the Orinoco instead of from Yucatan. When first occupied by man Porto Rico may have been a part of a peninsula connected with South America. Its fauna and flora are of the South American type, and it contains relics of a forgotten race which show evidence of a high grade of culture. Few traces of these aborigines are now to be found except in the interior of the island. Among the curious remains are stone-enclosed plazas, on which ceremonial dances were performed. The remains of carved idols and pottery show no small degree of skill and taste. No traces of stone buildings resembling those of the Mayas are found, but the houses are of the South American type.

The Apple of Eden.

From time immemorial the apple has been blamed for being the cause of man's downfall in the garden of Eden. We have even gone so far as to call our Adam's apple by that name in memory of the incident.

As a matter of fact, the word apple does not appear in that part of Genesis treating with the Garden of Eden, the "fruit of the tree" being the words always used. The fallacy arose from the fact that the word apple has in many languages the general meaning of fruit, and that before an English translation of the Bible was permitted the story was incorrectly spread by ignorant churchmen, and thus took root too deeply to be eradicated.

DESTROYER ALWAYS A BOAT

Sailors Will Never Refer to the Deadly Little Vessels by Any Other Name.

A destroyer is always a boat; never anything but a boat; to call a destroyer anything but a boat is evidence either of ignorance or malice, writes Herbert Corey in the National Geographic Magazine.

All persons, even remotely connected with the "boats," feel contempt for the "inefficients" who shelter themselves from the wrath of the sea in cumbersome battleships. They say such persons might as well go to sea on drylocks.

A boatman feels he is just a little better than other men. He lives harder, with less ease, fewer hot meals, more water in his boots, shorter hours of sleep and more salt in his whiskers than any other seaman except, perhaps, the old-fashioned schoonerman who fishes for cod. He will take more chances, get away with more deviltry and has less regard for the bones of his hands than any other man in the navy.

The destroyers are at their best when permitted a speed of 20 knots or so. At 12 knots they bob and roll and swing in every slant and ripple of the uneasy water. At such times, especially if there is a bit of sea on, no one thinks of sleep on a destroyer. Old hands have an acrobatic habit of wedging their heads and necks in a corner of the berth and so securing a certain amount of rest. On board the larger ships one might hardly know there had been wind or sea, but the men tumbling in a destroyer have been unable to bathe or shave or sleep.

Yet no one belonging to this boat would think of leaving. The men come through a seven-day run looking as though stricken by the wrath of heaven. Their food has been sand-wiches, which they have only been able to eat by hooking one arm around a stanchion. They are covered with bruises, except where the flesh has been so enduring and hardened that it can bruise no more. Their eyes are ringed with crime and red as those of an angry parrot. Yet they are so constituted that to tell about the boats they can go without food, sleep or other necessities. Their eyes shine and they reach for your arm to shake you into an appreciation of their pets.

Sawdust Diet Progresses.

Hydrolized sawdust as a part of a ration for cows is apparently giving satisfactory results in Wisconsin. The forest service of the United States Department of Agriculture reports that cows at the agricultural college of that state are doing as well on a ration of one-third sawdust as they did when their feed was only one-fourth wood meal. That is to say, they are keeping up their weight and their milk production and show no ill effects from the diet.

The bureau of animal industry is considering the proposal of the forest service laboratory to start feeding trials with dairy animals in which the wood product will form a part of the ration and the tests will extend for an entire year at least. The hydrolized wood feed for these cows will be made at the laboratory. So far all the stock feed has been made from white pine sawdust. Other soft woods, particularly the western species, will be tried in the future.

Not Needed.

Secretary of War Weeks said at a dinner in New York:

"Your pacifist is of course wrong when he declares, like Tolstol, that there is no science of war—that soldiers are idiots. I heard a pacifist tell a story the other day.

"He said that a surgeon once apologized humbly to a man whom he had trephined. It seems that the surgeon in the course of this trephining operation had taken out the man's brains and then forgotten to put them back.

"But the man was not at all disturbed about the accident. He smiled and said:

"Oh, that's all right, doctor. You forget that I am a general."

Oldest Book in Country.

John Swenson, living north of Jamestown, Minn., claims the distinction of having the oldest book in the county. The book is a religious work published in the Danish language which his father bought at a rummage sale in Denmark more than fifty years ago. The book was published in Copenhagen. It bears the date of September 25, 1686, making it more than 234 years old. It is bound in parchment and is printed in old-style Danish. It is still readable.

Home Builders Who Suspend.

The St. Louis Home and Housing association, organized with a capital of two million dollars to help solve the housing problem by building houses and selling them at approximate cost, has suspended building operations because there is no demand for the houses. Since its organization a year ago the association has built 127 houses, of which 26 remain unsold.

Cold Comfort.

The maiden of forty or so was upset. Said she to a younger friend: "Kate talks so outrageously. Yesterday she told me I was nothing but a hopeless old maid."

"That's pretty frank," exclaimed her friend. "Still, it's better than having her tell lies about you."

EARNED LOVE OF SPANIARDS

Woman Lives in History as the Heroine of the Famous Siege of Zaragoza.

Of national heroines there stands prominent the Spanish maid of Zaragoza, Agostina Aragon, immortalized in a poem by Lord Byron. Agostina figures in the days when Napoleon's army swept across the Pyrenees to steady the tottering throne of Castile on which the Corsican had placed his unwilling brother Joseph. French siege guns first sent their messengers of death into Zaragoza, ancient capital of Aragon. Soon the walls of the city crumbled and Spanish heroes fell dead by the hundreds, while heroic women, including Agostina, then but twenty-one, carried food and water to the hard-pressed survivors.

Suddenly the city's arsenal blew up, and Agostina saw her young husband stretched dead at her feet. Seizing the lighted match he had held to fire a cannon, the girl applied it to the fuse and fired the gun in the faces of the advancing French.

"From now on I shall command here," she shouted. "Who fights with me?"

The courage of the Spaniards returned. The peasant and priest fought side by side till the French were hurled back. And when night fell a strange silence came over the city. Firing ceased. Defeated, the French had drawn off. Next day the enemy began a formal siege of the city they had failed to carry by assault. After many days the French commander called upon the city to surrender, to which the Spanish defender returned the famous reply, "War to the knife."

Then for two weeks more the heroic Spanish fought from house to house, ready to die but not to surrender. Then, alarmed by a Spanish victory in his rear, the French general withdrew from the still unconquered Zaragoza.

For China's Health.

Effective work in health education has been accomplished through the school children in China. The American Junior Red Cross members have thrown their efforts into the work already done by welfare organizations. In the fifth health campaign conducted by the Y. M. C. A. the juniors loaned their services in addition to contributing money. They took part in the health parades, carrying large models of flies, mosquitoes, rats and other enemies to health. The older boys conducted open-air classes in the market places, where regular instruction in personal hygiene was given to children and incidentally to the grownups who were looking on. They distributed handbills and gave street-corner lectures on health. Being horn actors, they advanced the cause greatly by giving health plays. Part of the contribution from the national children's fund is used in making a survey of "gutter snipes," the destitute children in Shanghai, and in furthering the campaign against blindness.

The Lobster's Path.

The special dispatch from New London which told of the Noank fisherman who sold 2,700 pounds of lobsters for more than $300, thus enabling him to pay all the expenses incurred last spring when he started to build pots, buoys, etc., probably gives only the first chapter in an interesting story. It is fair to assume that the dealer who resold them to the summer hotel was enabled to pay the expenses he incurred when he erected his new warehouse, wharves and office buildings last fall; while, it may be presumed, the summer hotel owner in retelling them to his guests cleared off the half-million-dollar mortgage he contracted when he added the 10-story marble wing earlier in the season.—Hartford (Conn.) Courant.

Too Much Detail.

Critic Brander Matthews said at a Columbia tea:

"Suggestion rather than detail makes the most vivid picture. Detail, indeed, may spoil a picture completely.

"A preacher was describing heaven to a widow whose husband had just died. He said that the separation of dear ones was not for long, and then with elaborate detail he painted the happiness of those whom death reunites in Paradise.

"When the preacher stopped for breath the widow observed thoughtfully:

"Well, I suppose his first wife has got him again, then."

Beyond His Comprehension.

"A curious case came up in the Court of Domestic Relations this morning."

"What was it all about?" asked the meek little nun.

"A wife charged that her husband cut out the department store advertisements from the family newspaper before he'd let her read it. He was a brute, wasn't he?"

"Certainly," replied the meek little nun. "But what I don't understand is how he managed to get hold of the paper first." —Birmingham Age-Herald.

After Him.

One of the members of a negro church in Alabama was talking to the minister one day of the temptations Satan placed in one's path, when the pastor granted impatiently and replied:

"Folks make me tired representin' Satan as runnin' after dem with a pitchfork. De truth is, my friend, dere is so many people pullin' at de devil's coat-tails dat he ain't got much time to chase anybody."
